

FACULTY

David Androff, Assistant Professor, Ph.D., University of California, Berkeley. Interests: Community interventions, violence and trauma, social work and the law, restorative justice, international social work, human rights, and social development.

Elizabeth K. Anthony, Assistant Professor, Ph.D., University of Denver. Interests: Resilience in children and youth, adolescent development, prevention of adolescent risk behaviors (e.g., substance abuse, juvenile delinquency, and school failure) and the effects of interventions and innovative practice approaches on children, adolescents, and families.

Cecilia Ayón, Assistant Professor, Ph.D., University of Washington. Interests: Latino family well-being, Latino families involved with the public child welfare system, service disparities and paths to services, power dynamics and advocacy, immigration, culturally relevant services, mental health needs among Latino communities.

Jose B. Ashford, Professor, Ph.D., Bowling Green State University. Interests: Forensic and correctional mental health, conflict and its management; procedural justice, specialty treatment courts, and aftercare.

Denise Bacchus, Assistant Professor, Ph.D., State University of New York, University at Albany. Interests: Co-occurring substance abuse and mental health disorders, trauma and HIV/AIDS in minority communities particularly women and children. Development and evaluation of culturally competent service delivery system and survey research methodology for developing test and measures to West Indian/Caribbean populations.

Robin Patchell Bonifas, Assistant Professor, University of Washington. Interests: Quality of care in long-term care facilities, specifically enhancing psychosocial and mental health care and preparing social workers and other professionals to deliver effective services in these areas, and gerontological social work education, assuring all graduates have a basic skills and knowledge for working with older adults.

Karen E. Gerdes, Associate Professor, Ph.D., Florida State University. Interests: Sexual abuse, domestic violence and child welfare services

Mary Gillmore, Director and Professor, Ph.D., University of Washington. Interests: Adolescents well-being, evidence-based practice and research methods. Specific interests: prevention of substance abuse and prevention of adverse consequences of sexual behavior such as unintended pregnancies and sexually transmitted diseases, including HIV.

Edwin Gonzalez-Santin, Academic Professional, M.S.W. Arizona State University. Interests: Native Americans; ethnic studies; minority student support.

Nora Gustavsson, Associate Professor, Ph.D., University of Southern California. Interests: Child welfare; disenfranchised populations.

Lynn C. Holley, Associate Professor, Ph.D., University of Washington. Interests: Feminist/multicultural research about ethnic agencies in communities of color; multicultural social work education; and intergroup dialogues.

Kelly Jackson, Assistant Professor, Ph.D., University at Buffalo, State University of New York. Interests: multiracial identity and cultural identity development, culturally sensitive interventions, and diversity education.

Judy Krysik, Associate Professor, Ph.D. Arizona State University. Interests: Social policy, child welfare, program planning, and evaluation.

Craig LeCroy, Professor, Ph.D., University of Wisconsin, Madison. Interests: Child and adolescent treatment; prevention, children's mental health; program evaluation; adolescent issues.

Leslie Leighninger, Professor, D.S.W., University of California, Berkeley. Interests: History of social work and social welfare; social policy; women's and minority issues; international social welfare.

Ann E. MacEachron, Professor, Ph.D., Cornell University. Interests: Management and evaluation of human services; case management; adult resiliency; Indian child welfare; financial management in NPOs.

Flavio Marsiglia, Professor, Ph.D., Case Western Reserve University. Interests: Substance abuse prevention; HIV/AIDS; group work; culturally-grounded social work practice.

Emilia E. Martinez-Brawley, Professor and Distinguished Community Service Scholar, Ed.D., Temple University, M.S.S., Bryn Mawr. Interests: International rural social work; intercultural and inter-language communication; comparative immigration issues; community service in higher education.

Jill Messing, Assistant Professor, Ph.D., University of California, Berkeley. Interests: Intimate partner violence, risk assessment, social service and criminal justice collaboration, feminism/women's issues, and research methods.

Darrel Montero, Associate Professor, Ph.D., University of California, Los Angeles. Interests: Social policy development and implementation in the U.S. and Western Europe; immigration issues.

Robert Moroney, Professor, Ph.D., Brandeis University. Interests: Planning theory; policy analysis; family policy, program planning, evaluation.

Maria Napoli, Associate Professor, Ph.D., New York University, New York. Interests: Direct practice; social work with families; holistic therapies; American Indian populations of the Southwest.

Ann W. Nichols, Associate Professor, D.S.W., Columbia University. Interests: Planned change and social action in communities and organizations; social policy, especially related to children and health; criminal justice and prison reform.

Mike Niles, Assistant Professor, Ph.D., University of Wisconsin, Madison. Interests: Macro social work practice; First Nations Peoples; early childhood intervention programs; prevention science; program evaluation; quantitative statistical methodology.

Juan J. Paz, Jr., Associate Professor, D.S.W., Howard University. Interests: Hispanic elderly, substance abuse, prevention and treatment.

Michael D. Peck, Lecturer, Ph.D., University of Washington. Interests: Gerontology, social work practice with older adults, cognitive appraisal and cognitive interventions, public policy and aging, transportation for older adults.

Leila Rankin, Assistant Professor, Ph.D. University of Arizona. Interests: Diverse methodological and statistical approaches to the study of adolescent social development and risk behaviors within an ecological framework.

Christina Risley-Curtiss, Associate Professor, Ph.D., University of Maryland, Baltimore County. Interests: Policy, practice and program evaluation in child welfare and public health; the animal-human connection, women's issues.

Barbara Robles, Associate Professor, Ph.D. University of Maryland-College Park. Interests: Financial literacy, the Earned Income Tax Credit as a source of capitalization for microbusinesses, Latina entrepreneurship and microbusiness as well as family and community asset building on the US-Mexico Border Economy.

Dominique Roe-Sepowitz, Assistant Professor, Ph.D. Florida State University. Interests: Women and violence, adult and juvenile corrections, forensic social work, trauma and trauma interventions, anxiety disorders, sexually abused children, cognitive behavioral parent training, prostitution and the sex industry, abortion issues, self-mutilation and suicide among adolescents.

Lorraine Moya Salas, Lecturer, Ph.D anticipated July 2007, Arizona State University. Interests include: Immigrant issues, culturally-grounded social work practice, diversity and oppression education, and qualitative/emancipatory research strategies.

Elizabeth A. Segal, Professor, Ph.D., University of Illinois, Chicago. Interests: Child welfare; social welfare policy; social justice, impact of policies and programs on disenfranchised populations.

Layne K. Stromwall, Associate Professor, Ph.D., Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland. Interests: Serious mental illness, co-occurring conditions; outcomes of behavioral health treatment; mental health disparities.

Luis Zayas, Assistant Professor, Ph.D., University of Chicago. Interests: Ethnography; Qualitative Research; Mixed-Methods; Community-Based Participatory Research with areas of expertise in Medical Anthropology, Health Behavior & Health Promotion, Health Inequalities, Cultural competence in Health Care, Health Workforce Development; Anthropology of Development, Tourism; and Religion.